

West Indian Whistling-Duck Dendrocygna arborea

FEATHERY FACTS

These ducks live in many parts of the Caribbean, but they are not as common as they once were. They need wetland habitats like mangroves and ponds to survive, but many of these have been destroyed. They are mostly active at night. Sometimes they roost or nest in trees. Have you ever seen a duck in a tree?

